Forum

The challenges in making Rural ITS work are significant. Therefore, it's important for ITS technology practitioners to be able to meet in order to share what they've learned and help advance the state-of-the-practice.

If you are involved with ITS technology at a field level, whether in design and engineering, communications system development, systems integration, or field maintenance, we invite you to attend the 2017 Western States Rural Transportation Technology Implementers Forum. Share what you have learned and learn from others.
